

COLD-PRESSED GRENADINE

Thanks to Paul Clarke, who authors the charming and indispensable blog, Cocktail Chronicles. This is a simple recipe for a grenadine that is bright and full of fresh pomegranate flavor, and leaves out the high-fructose corn syrup and red food coloring so prevalent in commercial varieties these days.

Ingredients:

- 1 cup unsweetened pomegranate juice (we like Trader Joe's)
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 oz. Portland 88 Vodka, as a preservative
- 1 glass jar with a tight-fitting lid

Directions:

1. Pour pomegranate juice into jar.
2. Add sugar. Tighten lid onto jar, and give a good shake until all sugar is dissolved.
3. Stir in Portland 88, re-seal jar, and store in freezer.
